Description: The Mediterranean Grid infrastructure for research, EUMEDGRID, will hold its first conference where it will present the vision of cross-national e-infrastructures as a driving force towards widening the European Research Area and bridging the digital divide between Europe and the neighbouring Mediterranean countries. The EUMEDGRID conference will discuss how Grids can become a major instrument for international cooperation in e-science and beyond, illustrated by real, operating application and case histories. The European approach to cooperation policies for the Mediterranean and other neighbour countries will also be discussed, with a special attention to the novelties introduced in the upcoming Seventh European framework programme for research and the European neighbourhood programme.
